

NNAC November/December 2023

Chairman's Letter

This month I must extend our thanks to Sue Williams who stepped in at the last minute as our planned demonstrator had to cancel. Sue's demonstration in acrylic inks was very well attended and much appreciated by her audience, perhaps we shall see more work in this medium at our next selection day.

Our next demonstration is not until after Christmas when Richard Motley will be talking to us about NNAC paintings. In the mean time we have the easel party to enjoy on 25th November. Members are often unsure exactly what this involves and what happens. Please be reassured that this is a very light hearted occasion open to all our members, with a quiz and a simple art activity helped along with some tasty nibbles, at the same time if you wish, it is an opportunity to seek comments on work in progress .

Planning is now going ahead for next year's NNAC activities hopefully to include more workshops, exhibitions and maybe a plein air painting day. Please let us know if you have any exciting events you are taking part in in the new year and if you would like any of them to involve the art circle. In March we shall be looking for some new council members, if you would like to feel more involved and feel you can contribute fresh ideas to help keep us moving forward don't be shy, you will be very welcome.

MEMBER BENEFIT

As a member did you know you are entitled to have a page on our website. If you have had work selected for previous exhibitions you can send your biography and up to five images to Ruth Mann, webmaster for NNAC, and she will upload it onto NNAC's website.

If you have not had any work selected, images of artwork would need to be scrutinised by Council before it could be uploaded to the website.

Please do take advantage of this to benefit you, or you want to update your page, please contact
