You might like to let members know that I awarded my President's Prize to John Blatchford for his wonderful sculpture 'Summit 92'. I awarded it for innovation, use of materials and deep meaning.

I said at the last Forum show that I would award a prize at each exhibition during my time as President. I will not divulge my criteria beforehand as I want our artists to continue to do their best without working towards a prize for a specific type, style or theme in art.

Demo by James Power AIEA, SEA "The horse" Saturday 26th October 2019

James (Jim) has come from an equestrian background, working with horses all his life. He became a serious equestrian artist in the 1980's

Jim began by showing us a basic framework of lines in order to correctly proportion a drawing of a horse ref "THE HORSE Its action & anatomy by an artist by LUARD" then building with charcoal and chalks, he described how to complete several sketches from the same techniques describing how to develop the muscles with shadow and light. James made several direct and helpful references to Alfred Munnings and he is currently linked and working with the Munnings Museum.

After the tea break Jim described his palette and then treated us to a lively painting of a racehorse.

The afternoon most certainly gave us all a fascinating insight into the world of equestrian Art.

Malcolm Jarvis Workshop Saturday 2nd November

Malcolm started his workshop with a presentation showing the history of abstract art. He then gave us each a very simplified line drawing of some flowers and asked us all to paint an abstract picture from the drawing.

Before our lunch break, he gave a short demonstration of how he begins one of his abstract works. Then it was our turn as he tried to help everyone with their efforts. The critique at the end of the day showed some very imaginative paintings and everyone agreed that it was a lovely day. Thank you Malcolm.

SEASON'S GREETINGS TO ALL OUR MEMBERS AND EVERY SUCCESS FOR 2020

Feed up Feed back party Saturday 23rd November

Our feed up feed back party was very successful, with many different elements. There were several tables covered in donated food, one with small works which we could swap with another, yet another couple of tables of various art materials and books for sale and finally a large array of paintings that people wanted comments about. Food, wine and lots of chat started the afternoon, followed by gentle discussion and comment about the works on show. A lovely afternoon, thank you all.
