After a wait of two years, the longest-running art group in Norfolk will be staging its 202nd exhibition. Established in 1885, it will show more than 150 works by its members at the Forum in Norwich this May.

The exhibition will feature new selected artworks from members of the group in a variety of mediums, styles and artforms with most of the artwork for sale.

Hazel Pidsley, chairman of Norfolk and Norwich Art Circle, said: “I am delighted that we can stage an exhibition in The Forum again and I do hope we will attract many visitors to see the varied, high-quality art that is produced by our members. “There are more than 150 works to peruse in diverse mediums.

We are holding a private view on Friday 6th May 2022 from 6-8p.m. when artists and members will be attending to talk about their work and give information about Norfolk and Norwich Art Circle, which has a long history and illustrious former members including Sir Alfred Munnings RA, Edward Seago and Sir John Arnesby Brown RA.

Thankfully the restrictions have been lifted so I hope people will enjoy the experience of seeing our members’ art in an excellent setting.”
